Of course, the proposed trial of William Hohenzollern would be public.

Say it not again that talk is cheap— not when you talk over the telephone.

Give the returning Yankee division men something besides a "glad hand."

If we allies aren't alert, the Germans may yet be the first to fly across the Atlantic ocean.

The German delegates who brought their golf clubs with them to Versailles will find their course beset with many hazards.

That "Franco-American alliance" may be scratched and found to be merely another indirect attack on President Wilson.

The "YD" men are being made into civilians at the rate of 25 a minute at Camp Devens. Which is considerably faster than they were made into soldiers. The faster the better.

Indications which have come to Secretary of State Black go to indicate that Vermont will have more tourists than ever during the summer of 1919. Vermont hotels and boardinghouses can do their part toward getting ready for the visitors; towns can do their part by getting the main highways in as good condition as possible and at as early a date as possible; the people of the communities can contribute something to the welcome of the visitors by slicking up their premises to the greatest extent possible. If a large number of tourists are coming into Vermont let us make Vermont as attractive as possible, even if we haven't the ambition to do it for our own benefit.

The serious injuries sustained by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a street accident in New York will cause regret to many people outside as well as inside of union labor in the United States. Gompers is closely wedded to the interests of union labor but he also has given patriotic service to the officers of the United States government in matters pertaining particularly to labor. As such he has been a valuable aid in throwing light on subjects which are of such a nature that they would not ordinarily have come within the ken of the government.

Barre people need to boost hard during the next few days to bring the city's subscription in the Victory loan up to the quota of $300,000. Already about one-half the towns and cities in the state have reached their quotas in the present drive, and it will be a distinct discredit to any of them that fail to come up to the mark before the campaign runs out. So let Barre people come forward now with their subscriptions to the loan so that the city may not be left out at the final reckoning and so that it also may not be among the very last to accomplish the desired result. The city's record has been so good in other loans that it should not fail in the present effort, nor even be among the last to fulfill its obligation to the government. Our subscription is well started; let's finish it this week.

necessary to the determination of the guilt or the innocence of William Hohenzollern, charged with a "supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties," would be one of the most important features of the entire document and is, perhaps, calculated to be a powerful deterrent against the declaration of war in the future. It is conceded that wars are most apt to be fomented by rulers ambitious for more power and more wealth and not by the people themselves; therefore, if it is to become the custom for rulers to be brought to trial for such crimes against humanity there will be less disposition to thrust a nation into war. Regardless of the outcome of the proposed trial of William Hohenzollern, there would be decreased tendency on the part of royalty to hurl the people of any nation into war. Hence as a possible deterrent against repetition of the recent terrible bloodshed, the bringing of Hohenzollern to the bar of international justice and the requirement on the present German government that it furnish all the documents and information available on the subject of responsibility for the war furnish a powerful lever in favor of peace. The matter ought most certainly to be included in the treaty of peace.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE PRICE OF MILK.

Big Heartedness Gives Way to Consistent Fairness.

Editor, Times: With your permission, I desire sufficient space in your paper to explain to the public what has taken place in our city in reference to the price of milk. Wednesday evening last, a meeting of milk producers was called to discuss future milk prices. There was a misunderstanding about how to discriminate between the Barre Milk Producers' association and the Barre local of the New England Milk Producers' association and this, combined with the tie-up of the telephone service, was probably accountable for the very small attendance at the meeting of the producers who supply local retailers. However, after discussing the pros and cons of the milk situation for the purpose of inducing the public to consume more of the cheapest and healthiest food available at the time when milk is most plentiful, it was voted to reduce the price to 8 cents per quart from May 1 to July 1. By Saturday morning, with the change from summer weather to an atmosphere filled with snow flakes, it did not look attractive to try to adjust the business to fit the reduction for so short a time, knowing full well that by the time proper adjustment was fairly made another new price proposition was bound to come. It ironed out this way:

The producers and retailers discussed the matter as they never did before, and decided on a joint meeting for the evening. This time there was a rousing attendance, each one wearing on the lapel of his coat the badge of fairness. The situation was gone over again and they got off at the right place. It was cited that while a reduction of one cent a quart might save the fairly liberal consumer 60 cents per month, it would on the other hand mean $80 to the producer, who is making 200 quarts of milk per day. Therefore, they rescinded the vote to put milk to 8 cents and voted into its place the old price of 9 cents per quart, with a mutual understanding that the price should not change until some decidedly different conditions arose that would demand readjustment. A Milk Producer.

These Durable Soles Cut Shoe Bills Down

"For use around cement plants and similar places where rough materials grind down soles quickly, I recommend Neolin Soles. They resist wear surprisingly. After working around the clinker department long enough to wear out two pairs of ordinary soles, my Neolin Soles are still as good as new," writes A. F. Miller, superintendent of The Peninsular Portland Cement Company plant in Jackson, Michigan.

It is remarkable how tough and durable Neolin Soles are. They are made so by Science—comfortable and waterproof, too. They come on new shoes in many styles for men, women, and children, and are available everywhere for re-soles. Wear them, and cut your shoe bills down.

Neolin Soles are made by The Good-year Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels, guaranteed to outwear all other heels.
